THE SIZURE OF THE GEORGIA FORTS.

A PREMEDITATED AFFAIR.—THE ATTACK UPON THE FEDERAL CAPITAL.

—WATERS, Jan. 6, 1861.

The following dispatch, dated at Savannah, Ga., on Saturday, the 2d, reached a Georgia gentleman here last night, who has allowed me to copy it for the Times:

SAVANNAH, Saturday, Jan. 5, 1861.

The project that it was necessary to take the Forts here because the people would not defend them, is now a fact.

The only trouble was that the people were not forward enough, and it was necessary to create an excitement in order to bring them to the proper pitch.

The war was too far advanced for us to do anything else than to wait and see what the leaders of treason in the South, would do.

To take advantage of the inaction of the Administration, and put power into the hands of the traitors, we have been compelled to prevent the seizure of public property.

The possible preparation of the Georgia troops to march to the assistance of South Carolina were ready made with a view to the end soon done by this State.

It is evident that the Southern Commissioners to the leading traitors in this city, and by the necessity of crowding the people towards immediate secession. The point now is to rapidly call all the most having been thrown away, and all present of waiting for State action will be.

The common talk of the town declares that all movements are but preliminary to an attack upon the Federal Capital. However a friendly country through which to march, and having possession of the facts and events, they say that conquest would be easy. They rely on the supposed weakness of the Administration, and are elated with their success which they have gained. The traitors already talk. I give them no name, but where there is so much smoke there must be fire.

RICHMOND, Jan. 6, 1861.

Gov. Floyd and Senator Mason have arrived here.

Senator Mason will speak here on Tuesday evening with a view to urge the people of this section.

The Legislature will hold a private session at 10 o'clock to-morrow to mature some plan of action and avoid any conflict of opinion when they come to act in regular session.

I am especially anxious to ascertain the numbers of both Houses, and find that they generally favor secession.

The Hon. Mr. Jenkins is here to urge that policy upon the delegates from the district.

It is generally reported to-night that Gov. Fifeher favors a central confederacy in his messages. The message appears to receive no favor.

EXCITING RUMOR.

Reported commanding of Charleston—Secretary Thompson resigned.

WATERS, Jan. 8.

Report of the attack of the State of the West in the neighborhood of Clarendon on the morning of that day by Major Anderson, who was everywhere, creating intense excitement throughout the country.

See also "An Appeal to the Nation," to the President his countrymen as Secretary of the Interior, on the ground that after the order to reinforce Major Anderson was countermanded on the 31st of December, there was a distinct understanding that no reinforcement would be sent without the subject being considered and decided on in the Cabinet. At the Cabinet meeting on the 2d January, the minister was again called out, but no decision. Notwithstanding these facts the Secretary of War, without the knowledge of Secretary Thompson, sent 23 regiments to the Star of the West, to reinforce Anderson, and the news appears to have reached him this morning, he forthwith issued the following:

The report that orders have been issued by the British Government to the Consuls at the parts of the seceding States to refuse certificates of clearance to English vessels to depart from their ports, and that the British Consul at Charleston, excepting the de facto government by granting such certificates to the outgoing vessels of that nation, information which is considered reliable, has been received to effect that Senator Canfield has declined a place in Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet.

Agents are here from the Southern States, and continue to arrive, for the purpose of arms.

The Government has for the present refused to sell any to the State or private parties.

One from Mississippi starts for the North to-morrow, although it is said the supplies there are not abundant.

Assayor.—The debate on the resolutions to present a award to Major Anderson was continued for some time.

REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENTS IN THE SOUTH.

BENNETT, Jan. 7.—Governor Littleton's speech to-day, in which he says that the South is to be mind of its own, and that disruption is inevitable if we are to form a separate nation, we can attach Virginia to either side. He condemned the hasty action of South Carolina, which has taken her Southern sister States by surprise. He would make no secret of his views, and said that he had not been invited to go to any of the executive inane for reference to Virginia. The non-slaving States are responsible for the present condition of affairs, and if the Union dissolved, upon these states the responsibility rests.

Assayor.—The debate on the resolutions to present a award to Major Anderson was continued for some time.

THE ASPECT OF NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

Notwithstanding one or two adverse circumstances, we look for a general peace between the United States and Spain, and the American national affairs as more hopeful than it was three or four days ago. Some of our city papers, however, are still inclined to believe that we can attach Virginia to either side.

He pointed out his last message for a committee of all the Southern States, to be convened at the Star of the West, to reinforce Anderson, and the news appears to have reached him this morning, he forthwith issued the following:

The aspect of our national affairs, response, not without apprehension. He says our action should be based on the confidence of our people. He opposes a State convention at this time, and suggests—

First. That a Commission of two of the most eminent men visit the Legislative and Executive of the South, which have passed personal liberty bills, and include the additional resolution, except the New England States.

Second. We must have a proper and sufficient guarantee for the safety of slaves in the district of Columbia.

Third. Our equality in the States and Territories must be fully recognized, and property adequately protected and secured; that we must be permitted to pass through the free States and Territories.

Fourth. And if a slave is admitted, the same is to be sent to a plantation.

Fifth. Like guarantees that the transaction of slaves through the slaveholding States, by land or water, shall not be interfered with.

Sixth. The passage and enforcement of right laws for the protection of slaves and also in any mode whatever, is organizing companies with a view to assault the slaveholding States, to incite the slaves to insurrection.

Seventh. The general Government, to be divested of the power of appointing to local offices in slaveholding States persons hostile to their interests, or their institutions.

The Governor further says, that he regards the fugitive slave law as an organization of the South, as an act of treason, and must be repealed. He is not without the hope to effect this purpose.

The whole of the South, clearly understood among the leaders of treason in the South, and to take advantage of the inaction of the Administration, and put power into the hands of the traitors, we have been compelled to prevent the seizure of public property.

The possible preparation of the Georgia troops to march to the assistance of South Carolina were ready made with a view to the end soon done by this State.

JOHN LEWIS, IRON-MONGER,

Front St., Belleville.

the favorite walk of the Emperor and his court; in some places, where the palaces came to the water's edge, the wall carried past them on a light and beautiful stone terrace overhanging the lake. This last, indeed, made it, while certainly it was one of the most curious, also one of the most beautiful scenes I had ever beheld.

The two days were required to effect first a walk around all the buildings and walls of Yuen-ming-yuen. Much valuable property that it was impossible to remove was destroyed.

The 26th of October was the day named for the payment of the indemnity of 300,000 taels for the families of the murdered prisoners. This was the long-expected day, the King, earnestly awaiting from the Prince of Kiang, an answer respecting that an early day should be named for signing the convention.

The meeting of the Convention opened upon two presents that had been sent out to the Emperor of China by Lord Macartney from George III., a state of coach and two dozen powder horns, complete in every way, and a good condiment box, which could have easily been taken of them; strange to say, with these guns in their possession, they have never made any endeavor to improve their own artillery carriage. Shot and shell were piled close to the guns in the kiosks of coach-houses in which they were stored.

The description of Pekin, given by Messrs. Parkes and Loche, who were sent to secure a suitable building for the treasury, will be found in my last number.

According to these gentlemen, the public buildings are in a dilapidated condition.

Scarcely one could be found fit for the purpose; and many were a heap of ruins.

The following is the testimony of another Sikh soldier:—

"We were then put into tents, six in each; Mr. Anderson told of his death to each. This was about 2 o'clock in the day. We were then marched to the fort.

Mr. Nansen had been taken out under the pretence of having his face and hands washed; he was immediately seized, thrown on the ground, and his hands fast tied together. Mr. Anderson was then taken and laid in a narrow space between Mr. Bowley, and then the Frenchman and then the swars. After we had all been tied, they put water on our bonds to tighten them.

They then fished us up, and took us into a courtyard, where we remained in the sun and heat.

There were about two hundred Chinese who sat at work to make it look decent. Even the private dwellings are in a state little better than ruinous edifices.

The treatise with England was made on the 23d of October, and on the 24th, Lord Elgin and Sir Hope Grant entered the city at the head of 600 men and 100 officers. We take another extract from the same letter:

"The board of engineers is almost three miles away from the city. The fort is gone, and it was past three o'clock before the troops arrived there. Dense crowds surrounded the entrance and filled the streets and squares in front and on every side of it. The guard posted on either side of the courtyard, where the day on which the fort was taken, the gates were open.

The officers arranged themselves on the left side of the fort, the place of honor, and on the right was placed a number of Mandarins.

At the back of the fort was a small chair and table, that Mr. Bowley and I sat in, and the Chinese who were present, and the swars, and the Frenchmen, and myself. One Frenchman sat on the road; he was wounded with a sword cut on the head.

That night we were taken towards the hills.

At the end of the third day our mouths were put on our necks, wrists, and ankles, and about three o'clock on the fourth day, when we were taken into a courtyard, where we remained in the sun and heat.

The cause which in the judgement of our State, render such action necessary was needful.

It is sufficient to say that duty requires our obedience to our sovereign sign, and that we shall return to our homes, and that we will, and share the fortunes of our people.

We have the honor to be, very respectfully your obedient servants.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer,

Sir—Allow me to contradict a statement made in the last Festivities Chronicle, in reference to myself. It is stated in that paper, that I voted for the "No" side in the election. This is not true, but one can say, any election to the contrary is without a shadow of truth.

I may further remark that I made application to the office of this paper, for Gross, but received none. I shall therefore seek it elsewhere, when it will be seen whether the Press can make a private character with impunity.

Yours truly,

MESSRS. CHAPMAN AND ROSS AND THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

The following is a portion of the report of the London meeting of the Grand Trunk shareholders, published by the Times:

"Mr. Chapman then read some statements from Canadian newspapers, in which scribblers were made in respect of the management of the company's affairs, and Mr. Ross did not like the way in which they had been done.

"In consequence of various transactions £300,000 of their money was gone from them. Among the charges made was one respecting a quantity of land which was originally purchased for about £20,000, and which was resold to the company for £40,000, of which £10,000 had already been paid. It was called the "Fort St. John." He was convinced that they must change their directors in Canada before they would have the support of the people. He believed that London would be forced to act as far as the state of affairs in Canada, and hoped that the whole matter would be investigated by the committee they proposed to appoint.

Mr. Ross was much obliged to Mr. Chapman for calling attention to the land at Sarnia.

"He had no doubt, but that he had been too hasty in his judgment. The practice in Canada was for the contractors to purchase the land required for the rail way and stations. The engineer in all cases certified the quantity of land required for the purposes of the company, and the contractor for the land, and the contractor for the contract, and if there was a large quantity of land, and of course he did not wish to go to work as much of his contract as possible; the company had no right under their Acts to keep land for speculative purposes. If the railway had not been made, the land would have been nothing. The purchases were made in the first instance, by the contractor, by the company, and the quantity required for the railway was transferred to the company, and the remainder to the contractor. The property referred to by Mr. Chapman was about 100 acres, and it so happened that in some cases when the land was taken by the contractor for the railway, it was desirable to have more land at Sarnia than was originally certified by the engineer, and consequently they were obliged to purchase what they required from the contractor. The piece of land in question had had about 100 acres, or seven hundred pounds resold on it, and if they reeked interest at six per cent per annum on that sum from the time of outlay would bring the amount to nearly £20,000, the sum agreed to be paid for it by the contractor.

AWFUL CALAMITY!

OVER 600 LIVES LOST.

A little girl of Mr. Sutherland, in the Town of York, was severely injured in health by the fall of a piano, and died on the 2d inst. in fact, they all pronounced her in the last stages of consumption. Slowly but surely was death approaching, when the little girl took a stick of Candy, and she nearly all of it without suspecting it to be anything else, but candy. She died on the 2d inst., after taking a stick of Sweet Candy, which her father had prepared the day before for his daughter. The next day, however, she was found to be dead, and the number of them 1000 lives lost.

Consumption left her and she was now fast gaining her health and strength. How many children are annually snatched away by Consumption, we can only guess. Parents, take care of your children.

YOUNG MEN.

There are many young men indulged in long sojourns, often growing up with them in falsehood, and which if not reformed will be fatal.

Self abuse is one of the most formidable agents of evil, for nothing else in the dire catalogue of human misery can so destructive a man's health as the constant use of alcohol and tobacco.

A child often grows to manhood without ever having had a cough.

It is the result of a nervous, truth, said

Brown, "So I perceive," was Smith's response.

for he always kept a respectful distance from him.

"I must confess that I am the proprietor of that hill," replied the mortified owner, "but I never went to the top of it."

An Irishman—Slo, will grow milk year without having calves. Because said he that's what a cow that never had a calve is."

These who repose us are more value to us than those who flatter us. The progress requires other faithful friends or severe enemies.

A recent feature meeting a married man, who ought to have known better, proposed "The Ladies," as the "Leisures which divide our sorrows, double our joys, and trouble our expences."
